HAVANA WELCOMES COL. LINDBERGH

CUBANS DISREGARD CONFERENCE TO PAY TRIBUTE TO FLYER

"Caballero Del Aire" Royally Honored By Cuba Folks

HAVANA, Feb. 9.—A great international conference between the republics of North, Central and South America may be going on here today but Havana and, indeed, the whole island of Cuba had eyes only for one man—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The flush of Havana's magnificent welcome to the flying colonel has not worn off an iota and today everyone from the Cuban citizens to the officials and their own and sister governments rushed to do honor to the "Caballero Del Aire" and to gather in cheering crowds wherever it was reported Col. Lindbergh might be seen.

At noon today Col. Lindbergh was to be honored at a luncheon given by the officers of the Cuban Army at Camp Columbia. Later he was to go to a ball at the yacht club at which most of the delegates to the Pan-American conference will be present.

The newspapers today were filled with Col. Lindbergh's doings and printed editorials on his achievements as an emissary of good will. The general city-wide reception to Col. Lindbergh as he dropped from the sky yesterday afternoon after completing his flight from Haiti in perfect time was something which will be remembered by every Cuban.

At the Spirit of St. Louis was sighted from the historic Morro castle, the last stronghold of old Spain, sirens screamed, whistles shrieked and the horns of automobiles and the bells of street cars filled the air.

Lindbergh arrived. After the reception at the field, a motor procession was formed to escort Col. Lindbergh to the presidential palace where President Machado greeted him officially. In his greeting, President Machado included one for Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, the aviator's mother. It read:

"To your good mother, who awaits you with open arms, say in our name that her son discharges a great mission of love and peace, and that we, as also the other countries who have visited, owe her sincere acknowledgment for having brought to the world a person who has done so much for brotherhood among all peoples.

REPORT ON INQUIRY OF S-4 SUBMITTED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Sensational recommendations are expected in official quarters from the report of the board of inquiry which probed the S-4 disaster in Provincetown harbor last December.

Despite the most secretive measures which have been taken to guard the findings since the report was submitted to Secretary of the Navy Wilbur Monday, the department already buzzes with rumors of drastic action in prospect. Such reports are given some credence by evidences of division within the department as the method of publication. The ultimate decision rests with Wilbur, who planned Monday to release the findings on Tuesday. It is now revealed that ten days may pass before the final departmental review is completed.

STUDENTS TO HEAR CONCERT BY RADIO

Pupils of the Xenia City Schools will be enabled to hear the program to be broadcast by the New York Symphony Orchestra, Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

GOTHAM BREAD LINE PROVES THOUSANDS SUFFER IDLENESS

Unemployment Is Being Probed By Smith In New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—For the first time since the winter of 1920-21 a "bread line" has been established in the Bowery.

Thousands of men are out of work and their numbers are being constantly augmented. Last week the Bowery mission fed 7,202 men, the Rev. John R. Henry, superintendent, informed International News Service today. Other welfare organizations are similarly active and some of the social workers insist that a "crisis" is at hand. If severe weather sets in, suffering will be intense.

Elsewhere, as well as in New York City, the situation is acute. The Labor Bureau, Inc., specialists in economic research for labor unions, reports that 4,000,000 workers are out of employment in the United States.

Governor Alfred E. Smith has taken cognizance of conditions. He has instructed Commissioner James A. Hamilton of the state labor department to undertake a survey of the unemployment situation in New York City and to furnish him with all available information concerning conditions throughout the state, with a view of speeding up the state's public works program or taking other necessary steps to provide employment.

"I haven't seen as many men out of jobs as I have broken since the winter of 1914-15," said the Rev. Henry, "and I have been in mission work in the Bowery for the past thirty years. It is reminiscent of the terrible winter of 1899-99." Fully 1,000 men were lined up in the vicinity of the mission when the writer called to see the Rev. Henry. Shivering in dilapidated overcoats and some with no overcoats at all, they stood in line four deep for a full block. Then the line turned and hundreds more lined up, shuffling slowly toward the mission where coffee, meat, soup and bread were doled out without cost. Several policemen were necessary to keep the long lines of hungry men in order.

COLUMBIA TAKE OFF PLANNED ON FRIDAY

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Feb. 9.—Unless favorable conditions arrive earlier than predicted, the trans-Atlantic monoplane Columbia, carrying Charles A. Levine and Miss Mabel Bell as co-pilots and possibly Miss Mabel Bell as a passenger on a flight to an unnamed destination in the south, will take off tomorrow morning at ten o'clock Stultz announced today.

The pilot said Dr. James Kimball, of the U. S. Weather Bureau predicted ideal weather conditions for flying tomorrow.

ROCKEFELLER WILL PROBABLY TESTIFY BEFORE COMMITTEE

"Richest Man" Will Tell Of Urging Stewart To Talk

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., often termed the "richest man in the world," probably will be summoned to testify Saturday at the senate's new Teapot Dome investigation, it was learned today.

Rockefeller will be called to tell what he knows about the Continental Trading Company's mysterious $50,000,000 oil deal and its even more mysterious $3,000,000 Liberty Bond "slush fund." Rockefeller is not expected to divulge any new information but the committee was convinced that he ought to be put on the witness stand to prove that the largest stockholders in the oil companies involved knew little or nothing about the mysterious deals.

Rockefeller came into the picture because he is chairman of the board of trustees of the Rockefeller foundation, which virtually owns the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. The latter concern in turn owned half of the Sinclair Crude Oil Company, which bought fifty per cent of the oil from the Continental at $1.75 a barrel which bought it at the same rate for $1.50 a barrel from A. E. Humphreys, Texas oil man. The Continental made $3,000,000 on the deal.

Two motives prompted the senate public lands committee to summon Rockefeller as a witness. First, some senators wanted him called to prove that the committee was "playing no favorites." Second, other senators felt he should take the witness stand to show that Rockefeller did not approve of the action of Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Standard of Indiana, when the latter defied the committee.

Correspondence between Rockefeller and Senator Thomas J. Walsh, (D) of Montana, the senate's "oil prosecutor," demonstrated this fact but some committee members wanted Rockefeller to give the same testimony under oath. In his letters to Walsh, Rockefeller revealed that he had urged Stewart to tell the committee everything he knew about the deal.

The inquiry meanwhile stood in adjournment until Saturday while the senate's process servers sought to have a subpoena to Wayne O'Neill, son of James E. O'Neill, who received $800,000 in bonds from the Continental. The bonds, kept by Wayne O'Neill, were later paid into the treasury of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company—which joined with the Sinclair Crude Oil in buying Continental's oil—when the elder O'Neill thought he was going to die. Young O'Neill has been looked upon as a "missing witness" for five days.

CHAPLIN'S INCOME TAX CASE SETTLED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The famous Charlie Chaplin income tax case said to involve nearly $1,000,000, has been finally settled, it was learned at the treasury today.

The bureau of internal revenue declined to reveal the terms of the compromise agreement. The case has been in litigation a year, following levies made by the government on the property of Chaplin both in Los Angeles and New York.

These levies were filed during the time Chaplin was sued for divorce.

PHYSICAL MARKS PROVE YOUNG GIRL IS DESCENDANT OF CZAR

Sponsors Of Mystery Girl Claim Her Royal Identity Is Certain—Government Grants Voyager Special Privileges.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Out of the fog that held her prisoner at Quarantine since Tuesday, the liner Berengaria was to nose into port today; but whether her mysterious passenger, Mme. Anastasia Tchaikovsky, silent young Russian girl of twenty-six, proclaimed daughter of the slain czar, would emerge from the mists encompassing her life—that was a moot question.

A protruding left ankle bone, flat feet, a mole on her back—these characteristics stamp Anastasia as none other than the Grand Duchess Anastasia Nikolaevna, according to her sponsors.

If the mystery girl is the Grand Duchess, millions of dollars and succession to the throne of the Romanoffs would be hers, for Czar Nicholas, the Czarina and all their other children indisputably are dead.

Only in the case of his youngest daughter, Anastasia, is there doubt. It was believed generally that she, too, perished at the hands of Soviet assassins.

The thousand and fifteen foreign-bound travelers aboard the Berengaria heard tales on the way over that the Russian girl really is a demure domestic, Francesco Schankowsky.

Gleb Botkin, of Hempstead, N. Y., whose father was the czar's private physician, went aboard the ship to see Anastasia. But he did not call her by that name. He addressed her, "Your Highness," and declared that they had played together as children.

Botkin alleged that the ankle bone, the mole and the flat feet are evidence that will prove to all the world a Romanoff still lives.

Under orders from Washington, customs men examined Anastasia in her cabin, paying this deference instead of having her come to their office.

She is scheduled to go to the Long Island home of Mrs. William B. Leeds, the former Princess Xenia of Russia. Miss Agnes Gallagher, companion of the mystery visitor, said rest and medical aid would be sought in the United States during their six months' stay.

HICKMAN CASE WILL REACH JURORS LATE THURSDAY, IS SAID

Defense Counsel To Seek New Trial If Case Is Lost

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Feb. 9.—The fate of William Edward Hickman will be placed today in the hands of the four women and eight men who must decide whether he was sane or crazy when he stole and slew twelve year old Marlon Parker.

The trial of Hickman which has developed into an insanity hearing heard its close today as opposing counsel prepared their final arguments.

Defense counsel Richard Cantillon was ready to finish his address to the jury when the trial is resumed.

He was to be followed by District Attorney Asa Keyes who will close for the prosecution.

Superior Judge J. J. Trabucco was reported to have prepared his instructions to the jury.

With less than three hours remaining for the arguments, the case was expected to be given to the jury early this afternoon.

Court attaches predicted a speedy verdict.

Jerome Walsh, chief defense counsel, has indicated he will demand a second trial for Hickman if the jury finds he was sane and responsible for his crime.

The new trial will be sought, Walsh explained, on the grounds Hickman is now sane.

CLERK SHOTS GIRL WHO PLANNED JILT

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Herbert Davis, 22, a grocery clerk, shot his fiancée in her home last night and then turned the gun on himself, he confessed to police early today as surgeons in Jamaica Hospital planned an operation to save the lives of the two lovers.

Recovering consciousness for a few moments, Davis mumbled that his sweetheart had planned to return his ring. The girl, Margaret Detweiler, 19, a stenographer, was still unconscious early today.

NEW PHILADELPHIA MAN ADMITS CRIME; POLICE DRAG RIVER

Slew Sister-In-Law After Attack By Choking

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Feb. 9.—His throat and wrists slashed, William Herron, 41, remained a prisoner in the county jail here today while authorities dragged the Tuscarawas River for the body of his sister-in-law, Miss Viola May, 23. Although Sheriff Laird last night reported that Herron had confessed to throwing the girl's body into the river, County Prosecutor Patrick this morning declared that no signed confession had been obtained.

Herron, according to Laird, found an old safety razor blade in his cell during the night. He was found unconscious and bleeding this morning but physicians declare his injuries are not serious.

The girl's disappearance was reported early yesterday by Herron. His first story was that he and the girl had been attacked by a band of kidnapers who escaped with the girl after binding him and throwing him into a gravel pit on the Canton-Zanesville Road.

Investigators became suspicious of the story when Herron said he had stopped his auto because of a street intersection light. The time was about midnight, and records at police headquarters showed that no traffic lights burn after 11 p. m.

In his reported confession Herron told of attacking the girl in a gravel pit with her consent. An argument ensued, he said, when he choked her.

"I choked the girl too long," Laird reported, Herron told him. Herron told of then taking the girl's body to White bridge, about seven miles north of New Philadelphia, where it was cast into the water, Laird said. The Tuscarawas River is greatly swollen because of recent rains.

Sheriff Laird upon visiting the gravel pit, he said, found the shoes and a part of the clothing the girl wore. In Herron's auto were found a button from the girl's dress, her broken spectacles, loose change from her purse and a vanity case.

Laird reported he does not believe Herron's story that the girl submitted to his advances.

Miss May, with a girl friend, Evelyn Fritz, had visited Herron's home at the Herron residence, Miss May and Mrs. Herron were sisters. When the girls left, Herron agreed to drive them home. They first took Miss Fritz home and then started for the house where Miss May was employed as a domestic.

At about 2 a. m. yesterday Herron appeared at the home of a farmer and told of being attacked and the girl kidnapped.

Herron has been twice married and is the father of three children by the former marriage, and one by his present wife.

Mrs. Langley, the newest member of the "feminine bloc" and the only grandmother in congress, cast her first vote for preparedness by supporting an amendment to the war department supply bill providing increased funds for the officers' reserve corps.

"We are not militarists," said Mrs. Langley today, in explaining her stand, "but we are patriots. We believe in reasonable preparedness as peace insurance."

"We will welcome the day of universal peace and will work to bring it about. And one of the best means of preserving peace in our own country is to let every other nation know that we are ready to defend our honor."

FRENCH FLYERS GET WARM RECEPTION IN NATIONAL CAPITAL

Costes and Lebrun Greet
President At White House

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The capital was under two flags today as official and diplomatic circles repaid to flying sons of France the reception accorded Colonel Lindbergh in Paris last summer.

Lieutenant Dieudonne Costes, of the French Army, and Lieutenant Commander Joseph Lebrun, of the French navy, who arrived from their native country by way of South Africa, South America, Central America and Mexico, were the center of colorful receptions today as they landed at Bolling Field for their trip to New York.

The aviators have flown approximately 20,000 miles over four continents since they left Paris last October.

Feted by diplomatic and military groups at the French embassy last night following their arrival at the army field shortly after 4 o'clock, the aviators were guests today of aviation circles and the general public. Two cabinet members, the acting secretary of state and a host of high ranking military and naval officers made up the colorful and enthusiastic throng which hailed the flyers upon their arrival.

Following their presentation to President Harding by Ambassador Claudel, they will be guests at a hotel luncheon given by the "air cabinet," composed of the three aviation secretaries of the war, navy and commerce departments.

The guest list includes Lieutenants Mailland and Hegenberger, the first to fly from San Francisco to Honolulu, and scores of famous aviators from both military and civilian service.

Tonight, the aviators will be honored by a ball at the French embassy to which a notable assemblage of high government officials, diplomatic representatives and social leaders have been invited.

SELECTION OF JURY SLOWS UP OPENING OF JACKSON TRIAL

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 9.—With eight of the ten peremptory challenges remaining for both state and defense, selection of a jury in the trial of Governor Ed Jackson was believed to be still many hours away as the court session opened today.

Talesman from the first special venire were called to fill the holes in the regular court panel that came into existence during the first day of Jackson's trial for alleged attempted bribery of former Governor Warren T. McGary.

FRIENDS OF HOOVER CLAIM SOLID SOUTH WILL SUPPORT HIM

Opponents Admit Secretary To Have 148
Delegates

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Unless the forces that are opposing the presidential candidacy of Herbert Hoover beat themselves and start some serious missionary work, it is entirely likely that the cabinet candidate will come up to the Kansas City convention next June with the solid South's delegates securely tucked away in his vest pocket.

The Hoover managers jubilantly claimed them today, and the anti-Hoover people rather grudgingly admitted the fact.

The ten states that comprise the "hopelessly Democratic" South do not cast many Republican votes in November, but they cut no inconsiderable figure in June when it comes to nominating Republican candidates.

Leaving out the border states like Tennessee, Oklahoma and Kentucky, which are as Republican as Democratic in presidential elections, the southern states will have a bloc of 148 votes in Kansas City. And a survey today disclosed that most of them are already pledged to Hoover in one way or another, mostly through the national committee, who are the patronage distributors for their respective states. It is a bloc not to be despised by any aspirant for the nomination.

Six of the ten states of the solid South, Alabama, Louisiana, Georgia, Arkansas, Mississippi and Texas, are on record, through state, county or local Republican "bosses" as favoring Hoover's nomination. R. B. Creager, the Texas committeeman, "belled the cat" as long ago as last December. Within the past two weeks the others have followed his lead.

MEN ARE DOING THE DRINKING SURVEY SHOWS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The hand that rocks the cradle grows firmer under prohibition, and child health improves annually under constitutional rigidity, but the benefits are entirely lost upon the fathers and brothers of the country.

By Dr. Louis I. Dublin, a fellow of the American Public Health association, from a five-year study of the influence of prohibition on public health. His analysis of mortality statistics between 1900 and 1926 have been made public.

"The prohibition period," Dublin found, "is characteristic by sharply declining mortality rates among children and adolescents of both sexes, and this decline is characteristic of a number of additional age periods among women."

Better homes, more healthful food, greater freedom for recreation, the survey continued, have been reflected in the better health of the stay-at-homes.

CHAPLIN'S INCOME TAX CASE SETTLED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The famous Charlie Chaplin income tax case, said to involve nearly $1,000,000, has been finally settled, it was learned at the treasury today.

The bureau of internal revenue declined to reveal the terms of the compromise agreement. The case has been in litigation a year, following levies made by the government on the property of Chaplin both in Los Angeles and New York.

These levies were filed during the time Chaplin was sued for divorce.

The thousand and fifteen foreign travel agents abroad the Heron caria heard tales on the way over that the Russian girl really is a demented domestic, Francesco Schankowsky.

Gleb Botkin, of Hempstead, N. Y., whose father was the czar's private physician, went aboard the ship to see Anastasia but he did not call her by that name. He addressed her, "Your Highness," and declared that they had played together as children.

Botkin alleged that the ankle bone, the mole and the flat feet are evidence that will prove to all the world a Romanoff still lives.

TWO INNOCENT BYSTANDERS ARE KILLED BY CHICAGO DUELISTS

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—Two men were shot and killed and a third was seriously wounded today when they were caught in the cross fire of two unidentified duelists.

All of the victims were innocent bystanders, bound for work. The ruthless gun-fighters, neither of whom appeared to have been wounded, fled before startled spectators.

PHYSICAL MARKS PROVE YOUNG GIRL IS DESCENDANT OF CZAR

Sponsors Of Mystery Girl Claim Her Royal Identity
Is Certain—Government Grants Voyager
Special Privileges.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Out of the fog that held her prisoner at Quarantine since Tuesday, the liner Berengaria was to nose into port today; but whether her mystery passenger, Mme. Anastasia Tschaikovsky, silent young Russian girl of twenty-six, proclaimed daughter of the slain czar, would emerge from the plists encompassing her life—that was a moot question.

A protruding left ankle bone, flat feet, a mole on her back—these characteristics stamp Anastasia as none other than the Grand Duchess Anastasia Nikolaevna, according to her sponsors.

If the mystery girl is the Grand Duchess, millions of dollars and succession to the throne of the Romanoffs would be hers, for Czar Nicholas, the Czarina and all their other children indisputably are dead.

Only in the case of his youngest daughter, Anastasia, is there doubt. It was believed generally that she, too, perished at the hands of Soviet assassins.

The thousand and fifteen foreign travel agents aboard the Heron caria heard tales on the way over that the Russian girl really is a demented domestic, Francesco Schankowsky.

Gleb Botkin, of Hempstead, N. Y., whose father was the czar's private physician, went aboard the ship to see Anastasia but he did not call her by that name. He addressed her, "Your Highness," and declared that they had played together as children.

Botkin alleged that the ankle bone, the mole and the flat feet are evidence that will prove to all the world a Romanoff still lives.

He was to be followed by District Attorney Asa Keyes who will close for the prosecution.

Superior Judge J. J. Trabucco was reported to have prepared his instructions to the jury.

With less than three hours remaining for the arguments, the case was expected to be given to the jury early this afternoon.

Court attaches predicted a speedy verdict.

Jerome Walsh, chief defense counsel, has indicated he will demand a second trial for Hickman if the jury finds he was sane and responsible for his crime.

The new trial will be sought, Walsh explained, on the grounds Hickman is now sane.

NEW PHILADELPHIA MAN ADMITS CRIME; POLICE DRAG RIVER

Slew Sister-In-Law After Attack By Choking

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Feb. 9.—His throat and wrists slashed, William Herron, 41, remained a prisoner in the county jail here today while authorities dragged the Tuscarawas River for the body of his sister-in-law, Miss Viola May, 23. Although Sheriff Laird last night reported that Herron had confessed to throwing the girl body into the river, County Prosecutor Patrick this morning declared that no signed confession had been obtained.

Herron, according to Laird, found an old safety razor blade in his cell during the night. He was found unconscious and bleeding this morning but physicians declare his injuries are not serious.

The girl's disappearance was reported early yesterday by Herron. His first story was that he and the girl had been attacked by a band of kidnapers who escaped with the girl after binding him ... throwing him into a gravel pit on the Canton-Zoarville Road.

Investigators became suspicious of the story when Herron said he had stopped his auto because of a street intersection light. The time was about midnight and records at police headquarters showed that no traffic lights burn after 11 p. m.

In his reported confession Herron told of attacking the girl in a gravel pit with her consent. An argument ensued, he said, when he choked her.

"I choked the girl too long," Laird reported, Herron told him. Herron told of then taking the girl's body to White bridge, about seven miles north of New Philadelphia, where it was cast into the water, Laird said. The Tuscarawas River is greatly swollen because of recent rains.

Sheriff Laird upon visiting the gravel pit, he said, found the shoes and a part of the clothing the girl wore. In Herron's auto were found a button from the girl's dress, her broken spectacles, loose change from her purse and a vanity case.

Laird reported he does not believe Herron's story that the girl submitted to his advances.

Miss May, with a girl friend, Evelyn Fritz, had visited Herron's wife at the Herron residence, Miss May and Mrs. Herron were sisters. When the girls left, Herron agreed to drive them home. They first took Miss Fritz home and then started for the house where Miss May was employed as a domestic.

About 2 a. m. yesterday Herron appeared at the home of a farmer and told of being attacked and the girl kidnapped.

Herron has been twice married and is the father of three children by the former marriage, and one by his present wife.

BECK ALLOWED TO RETAIN SEAT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Ren James M. Beck, (R) of Pennsylvania, former solicitor general, today won his right before the house elections committee to keep his seat in congress.

The committee, voted 6 to 3, that Beck, successor to Senator-elect Vare, (R) of Pennsylvania, was properly a resident of Philadelphia at the time of his election and therefore was entitled to his seat.

Contest against was brought by Rep. Garrett of Tennessee, Democratic leader.

VAN WERT, O., Feb. 9.—Endorsement of Harry L. Conn, Van Wert, former justice of the state supreme court and former head of the state insurance department, as a Democratic nominee for governor, was announced here today by the Van Wert County Democratic executive and general committees.

READ THIS FIRST:
Jill Justin, ultra-modern and as lambently lovely at 20 as the Saga Lily, starts out on a moon-lit night in August, accompanied by her brother Tony, to attend a harvest festival.

The two run into an automobile hold-up. Jill is kidnapped by bandits, but later rescued by Jack Stuart and returned to her home in Elliston, W. Va.

It is the old story retold. Jack stays for a visit and remains to wed the adorable Jill.

Life is kind for the first three years to Jack and his wife, for they are the proud parents of a pair of twin boys and a girl.

Then comes the Great Event. Stuart and Tony Justin buy a tax title to property in the hills, incorporating an old abandoned silver mine.

This mine proves to be valuable in tungsten-bearing ore, and Pat Sweeney, father of Mary, or "Mike," as she is called, buys a fourth interest in the tax title for $100,000. Jack and Tony engage to transfer the ore to Pittsburgh in the Glass company trucks. On the finish of this job they are to receive the last installment of their $50,000 apiece. Some fear is entertained that hijackers may hold up a truck in the belief that it is carrying moonshine. To safeguard this risk Pat Sweeney and Big Bill Guernsey precede the trucks in the flivver Sooty Ann.

Previous to the start of trucking Pat takes a party, including Jack and Jill Stuart, Peter and Tony Justin, himself and Mike and Father Ryan, who, as Tony expresses it, "horns in" at the last moment, to Pittsburgh.

One of the results of this trip is the offer of a dancing engagement to Jill and Tony by the hotel management. They refuse an offer then, but later accept. The company returns to Elliston and transfer of ore is begun.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XVIII

During their talk that evening Big Bill Guernsey outlined briefly for Jack's and Tony's benefit the manner by which he had come to stumble on the ore pile on their "tax title oil property."

"I had heard about the old silver mine," he told them. "I was curious regarding it," he went on, "and I went to see it. You know it is said that West Virginia has produced, either in large or small quantities, about every mineral known to science. The leaders, of course, are coal, iron, oil and tin—also lead. Gas, naturally, is plentiful. The timber of the state is famous."

"Well," continued Big Bill, a contented grin stretching his humorous mouth, "when I saw that ore pile and then saw the veins of rock from which it had been blasted, I grew more curious. And curiosity, I want to remark, has led to a lot of valuable discoveries, even though it may have killed some mongrel cat sometime or other. Anyhow, I took a sack of that ore back to town and that night I made my little discovery."

"As you may, or may not be aware, tungsten, for a good many years after its discovery, found a very small demand except as an alloy in the hardening of steel. It was fifty years later that it began to be employed in the manufacture of filaments for electric incandescent lamps."

"The largest deposits of tungsten occur in Asia. In the Indo Malayan mountains. China now produces more than half the world's output, although it is found in practically every country on the globe, especially where there are large deposits of granite and metamorphic rocks where granite intrudes. Ordinarily the tungsten content of ore, as it is mined, is from 1 to 6 per cent; in rare instances as high as 10."

"In this ore on your property has run an average of 8 per cent, and we have taken samples from every part of the pile. But here is the peculiar thing about tungsten ore: A vein may be found, and every indication point to its tungsten content being inexhaustible. Suddenly it peters out. And that may be the only vein within miles of that location. Perhaps this vein from which the pile of ore was blasted will produce hundreds of tons more. But we can have no assurance of it until we've taken out the ore and proven it. That's why tungsten ore mining is such a gamble always."

"When this ore was blasted out more than fifty years ago, tungsten was an unknown mineral. When I discovered its content I hurried at once to Chicago and informed Pat Sweeney, my employer. That's the how and why of the whole thing!"

So far as there being oil-bearing rock beneath their property, Big Bill was skeptical. What Jack had seen he said, might be just a surface deposit.

"But are you sure all the ore in the mine is such a gamble always?"

"I am sure all the ore in the mine is such a gamble always."

"But are you sure all the ore in the mine is such a gamble always?"

"But are you sure all the ore in the mine is such a gamble always?"

The original "Get-Rich-Easy" young man of Elliston was to be his title.

It is the evening following the return from their first uneventful trip to Pittsburgh with two truckloads of "cold fire" ore. The place of meeting is the sitting room of the Justin home, Peter being the only addition to the original quartet. Pat Sweeney, as before, sits at the head of the table, pilot of the conversational craft.

Pat smiles, reaches into an inner pocket, and withdraws an official envelope, unsealed. From this he removes two certified checks, each drawn for $3,000, one payable to Jack M. Stuart and the other to Anthony L. Justin.

"Here ye are, me boys," he said, his smile broadening as he handed each young man his check. "All according to the agreement. We're off to a fine start an' 'tis well plazed O'm wid yez both. An' now O'm goin' to outline to yez a little plan that will account to yez friends an' the ever-curious public for the sudden rise in for-choon for the two av yez an' at the same time establish a credit an' reppy-tash-shun for yez bot' as flossy f-in-n-seers!"

"Yez know, av course, that if yez suddenly blossomed out wid a hoo-dred 'tousand' dollars between yez 't'd be dommed hard to convince the 'public it was lift yez by soom obbligin' uncle or aunt—who c'd hardly be a rillitive to yez both! If yez say nothin' at all this yez friends—an' the 'public—will believe the worst—yez musta stole it, some wheres!"

"So, yez see, yez hov' got to make a logical explain-shun that'll account for yez sudden ac-quirin' so much walth! If yez follia my plan yez'll never hov' to say a word. Other folks'll do it for yez an' mooch better than y'd do it fr yerselves! F'rinstance:

only addition to the original quartet. Pat Sweeney, as before, sits at the head of the table, pilot of the conversational craft.

Pat smiles, reaches into an inner pocket, and withdraws an official envelope, unsealed. From this he removes two certified checks, each drawn for $3,000, one payable to Jack M. Stuart and the other to Anthony L. Justin.

"Here ye are, me boys," he said, his smile broadening as he handed each young man his check. "All according to the agreement. We're off to a fine start an' 'tis well plazed O'm wid yez both. MOTORISTS FAIL TO COLLECT DAMAGES
CLEVELAND, Feb. 9.—Because of a recent United States Supreme Court ruling that motorists are responsible for their own lives when approaching a railroad grade crossing, Alfred S. Leuthold and his son, Emerson, both of Bucyrus, O., today were losers in their damage suits for $50,000 each, against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, filed in federal court here.

The Leutholds claimed they were injured when their car was struck by a train at a Bucyrus crossing July 26, 1925.

Federal Judge Paul Jones took the cases from the jury late yesterday and directed a verdict in favor of the defendant. The court held that under the highest court's opinion, the Leutholds should have stopped, looked and listened before attempting to cross the tracks.

CUTICURA HEALS ITCHY PIMPLES
Over Face and Neck, Hard and Very Red.

"My face and neck broke out with pimples and blackheads. The pimples were hard and very red and itched. They itched and burned so badly that I scratched them until they would bleed, and then they would scale over and be very sore. They were so thick that I was ashamed to go out or in company. I lost my rest at night on account of them."

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and was healed after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Herman Z. Woods, Box 556, Zanesville, Ohio, June 23, 1927.

Hot Dog Stands in Furore Over Award for Artistic Stand

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—The Society for the Beautification of Hot Dog Stands is in a state of furore as a result of some one's blunder which caused the society's prize of $300 donated by Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for the most artistic roadside hot dog stand, to be awarded to Miss Norma (Pinky) Rammon, proprietress of "Pinky's Pantry" at Plainfield, N. J., although Pinkie never sold a hot dog in her life. Not only that, Pinkie Rammon detests the joyous frankfurter and roll with or without mustard.

Pinky's Pantry stands in the shade of an old apple tree on Park Avenue, Plainfield. Such food as coffee cakes, preserves, sandwiches, etcetera, may be had there. But if a hot dog is wanted, the wayfarer must pass on.

Hot Dog Stands in Furore Over Award for Artistic Stand

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—The Society for the Beautification of Hot Dog Stands is in a state of furore as a result of some one's blunder which caused the society's prize of $300 donated by Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for the most artistic roadside hot dog stand, to be awarded to Miss Norma (Pinky) Rammon, proprietress of "Pinky's Pantry" at Plainfield, N. Pinky's Pantry stands in the shade of an old apple tree on Park Avenue, Plainfield. Such food as coffee cakes, preserves, sandwiches, etcetera, may be had there. But if a hot dog is wanted, the wayfarer must pass on.

Pinky's Pantry is all that could be desired of a wayside food stand. The windows are curtained, and the shelves are edged with rubberized chintz. The floors are covered with inlaid linoleum tessellated in black and white; the counters and baseboards of the Pantry are finished in black enamel. The outside of the structure is white; its turn of black and white and pink. It is an extremely artistic place, but alas! Pinkie does not sell hot dogs, and the conditions for the prize award distinctly specified hot dog stands. Wherefore close to a thousand real hot dog men have arisen to challenge the validity of the award.

However, through the action of Frank M. Fiori, president of a large frankfurter manufacturing concern, it seems probable that the award will be permitted to go through as per recommendation of the judging committee. Mr. Fiori has posted $10,000 in prizes for the most attractive wayside frankfurter stands. The hot dog dealers are mollified, but they insist that the judges of the Fiori contests shall be chosen from among persons actually known to eat, and enjoy, hot dogs.

HOT DOG STANDS IN FURORE OVER AWARD FOR ARTISTIC STAND

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—The Society for the Beautification of Hot Dog Stands is in a state of furore as a result of some one's prize of $300 donated by Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for the most artistic wayside hot dog stand, to be awarded to Miss Norma (Pinkie) Rammon, proprietress of "Pinkie's Pantry" at Plainfield, N. J., although Pinkie never sold a hot dog in her life. Not only that, Pinkie Rammon detests the lowly frankfurter and roll, with or without mustard.

Pinkie's Pantry stands in the shade of an old apple tree on Park Avenue, Plainfield. Such food as coffee cakes, preserves, sandwiches, etc., may be had there, but if a hot dog is wanted, the wayfarer must pass on.

Pinkie's Pantry is all that could be desired of a wayside food stand. The windows are curtained, and the shelves are edged with rubberized metal. The floors are covered with inlaid tilework, tessellated in black and white; the counters and baseboards of the Pantry are finished in black enamel. The outside of the structure is white; its turntable is black and white and pink. It is an extremely artistic place, but alas! Pinkie does not sell hot dogs, and the conditions for the prize award distinctly specified hot dog stands. Wherefore close to a thousand real hot dog men have arisen to challenge the validity of the award.

However, through the action of Frank M. Piror, president of a large frankfurter manufacturing concern, it seems probable that the award will be permitted to go through as per recommendation of the judging committee. Mr. Piror has posted $10,000 in prizes for the most attractive wayside frankfurter stands. The hot dog dealers are mollified, but they insist that the judges of the Piror contests shall be chosen from among persons actually known to eat, and enjoy, hot dogs.

CUTICURA HEALS ITCHY PIMPLES

Over Face and Neck. Hard and Very Red.

"My face and neck broke out with pimples and blackheads. The pimples were hard and very red and festered. They itched and burned so badly that I scratched them until they would bleed, and then they would scale over and be very sore. They were so thick that I was ashamed to go out or in company. I lost my rest at night on account of them.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and was healed after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Herman Z. Woods, Box 566, Zanesville, Ohio, June 23, 1927.

MOTORISTS FAIL TO COLLECT DAMAGES

CLEVELAND, Feb. 9.—Because of a recent United States Supreme Court ruling that motorists are responsible for their own lives when approaching a railroad grade crossing, Alfred S. Leuthold and his son, Emerson, both of Bucyrus, O., today were losers in their damage suits for $50,000 each, against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, filed in federal court here.

The Leutholds claimed they were injured when their car was struck by a train at a Bucyrus crossing July 26, 1925.

Federal Judge Paul Jones took the cases from the jury late yesterday and directed a verdict in favor of the defendant. The court held that under the highest court's opinion, the Leutholds should have stopped, looked and listened before attempting to cross the tracks.

A THREE DAYS COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germ.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Infant Care

Mothers, you can't start too early to establish a child's serene and tranquil disposition. Even an infant can have a happy, fretless state of uninterrupted health. What will help do this? A simple, purely vegetable product as old as you are: plain Castoria.

A few drops of Castoria will settle all uneasiness in a jiffy. Will dispel colic or ward off constipation; and just as surely check diarrhea.

In real sickness, call a physician. But many physicians use only Castoria for those little childhood disorders that need nothing more. You need never be afraid to give pure Castoria. It is safe and perfectly harmless, for it contains no paragon, no opiates, no dose of any kind. At least, this is true of genuine Fletcher's Castoria—and that is the kind doctors tell you always to buy.

Fletcher's Castoria is fine for any child. All children love to take it. Delicious tasting and as good as it tastes. Just look for the Fletcher's signature on the package and you will know you have the genuine and pure Castoria.

*SPECIAL NOTE: With every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria is wrapped a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

DUELS AND WARS

That dueling — a method of settling individual disputes now almost non-existent — was at one time as firmly established and as legal as war is today with its own code duello corresponding to our present international law, is pointed out by Charles Clayton Morrison in his book on "The Outlawry of War."

Dueling, he writes, had so woven itself into the presuppositions of society's thinking that a man was virtually compelled to uphold his "honor" by resorting to the duel on the slightest occasion of injury or affront. The arbitrament of the sword was accepted as establishing the "honor" of the victor. But when the conscience of society penetrated the absurdity, the irrelevance and the moral repugnance of the institution, it was disestablished by law and disappeared. Vestiges of this system of honor remain in such countries as Germany, France and Italy, but throughout the Anglo-Saxon world dueling has been made a crime, and one who slays another in a duel is treated as a plain criminal.

Much has been said about outlawing war just as the duel has been outlawed. The treaty signed a few days ago between the United States and France designed to avert any possibility of a conflict in the future is another step to end this ridiculous method of settling disputes between nations.

MYSTIC SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

No great excitement is caused by the announcement that General Electric engineers have about perfected television for radio listeners. The world is told that experiments at Schenectady have been carried out wherein the speaker at the microphone was seen distinctly by listeners at a receiving set, some distance away. And the world doesn't marvel in the least, but rather makes a gesture of impatience because it cannot buy a television the very next day at the electrical shop.

We are beginning to pick up some of the sights and sounds that are surging about us in space. It was only yesterday that radio began picking up the sound waves in a systematic manner, and giving them to the listener in his home. Radio has gone far in a few short years, since the war.

Now the television will begin picking up certain light waves and making them visible to the normal human eye. Maybe it isn't a light wave. That depends altogether upon what the scientists decide to call it. In any case, it's something we know little or nothing about. But we are learning how to pick out of the atmosphere certain mysterious forces that have been there, all about us, ever since creation of the universe.

What other mysterious forces are there, swarming in the atmosphere, that we may in time learn to sense through scientific instruments fashioned to aid our imperfect senses? May it not be possible, eventually, to pick up thought waves? To broadcast thought and emotion, and all the mysterious forces of the human mind and soul?

FACTS

It is said of Col. Raymond Robins, economist and social service worker, that he "possesses what appears to be a limitless fund of information on the problem that most demand public attention."

Of how few men and women in American can it be said that they possess a very large amount of information about any public question? There are plenty who make speeches about public questions, plenty who express street corner opinions in great volume, but few who have really taken the trouble to dig up the facts. And digging is just what it takes to bring up the facts. It has been said in this column before that there is no such thing as "automatic progress." To get facts means to work for them.

INNER FORCE

Some time ago guards at a Pennsylvania penitentiary declared in a petition to the trustees that they would resign if measures were not taken to keep prisoners from ridiculing and "sassing" them. No doubt the guards were annoyed and irritated. They shared the same sensibilities and fears that most of us share. We do not like it when we fail to command the respect of others and we would like to have some disciplinary measures taken to enforce that respect.

It's no use. If we haven't within us that substance of personality, that inner force which quietly commands respect, we can not expect to get it by force.

EVILS AND BLESSINGS

Restriction of output may be as great an evil as over-production. It depends on the way the "captains of industry" handle the case. An over-production of crude oil makes cheap gas for automobiles. But wasteful methods and low prices may mean prohibitively high prices later. Restriction may force high rates immediately and that is also sad. It takes a high order of business brains to handle the raw materials of this rich nation of ours.

MUSSOLINI

Bernard Shaw is right enough when he says our attitude toward a new regime should not be fixed by the methods by which that regime was brought into being. Strong-arm methods put Mussolini into power, but the important thing about the whole business is whether the Italian government is a good government or not. At present it appears to function pretty well. But Mussolini, like all dictators, goes too far. And he will go farther. He has too much power and he uses too much. The bad use of power will be the end of him. The people will stand for just so much and then they swing back. As they swing back, the dictator gets upset.

New Yorker

BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—It rained the other night in New York. When it rains in New York, Kalamazoo or in Los Angeles, discomfort is felt by the citizens in some degree, but not, I believe, to such an extent as in New York at the time when the crowds inch along miserably and the taxicabs become suddenly worth their weight in gold. I heard a girl challenge a vendor of umbrellas, in this wise: "I'll give you fifty cents if you scare me up a cab." "Can't be done, miss," he told her. "I'm a hackman myself, but this kind of a night, here's the best racket there is." And he marched off confidently with his rainsticks.

Owen Davis, Jr., appeared recently in a play by his father, a melancholy piece known cryptically as "Carry On." It was one of those unendurable stories of the sort of family eternally prating about what "We Marston's" do or do not, and the fact that the playwright's son was able to breathe any life at all into the character he impersonated was certainly a high point in his career. When ever I am unlucky enough to sit through a drama of this kind, I marvel at the faith, or perhaps the blindness of theatre backers. How anyone could sit through a rehearsal of "Carry On" without sensing that an intelligent audience's reaction would be one of passivity, or worse than that, occasional ribald mirth, is beyond me. As are so many other matters in that mystery, show business.

They give you a deck of very presentable playing cards when you eat at the Park Lane. At Alice Foote MacDougall's the bonus comes at tea time, when the fanciest tray of gadgets is passed around with the brew. Cherries, cloves, lemon and orange slices, and various other decorative, tasty but unnecessary trimmings are passed with the tea. At Drake's, in Forty-second street, the giveaway, which chiefly attracts women patrons, is the quality of small, spiced rolls always on the tables. The Waldorf provides a free table of mints and other candies for its luncheon guests. Henry's, the Swedish restaurant in Thirty-fifth street, secured its vogue by providing a free table of delicious hors d'oeuvres in the Scandinavian manner. Another Scandinavian eating place in Forty-fifth street, just off Lexington avenue, employs the same generous method, and proves it to be good business.

During the recent sewer scandal in Queens, the Electric Light and Power workers of the Borough, threw an elaborate party at the Pennsylvania. A friend tells me that he overheard a bell boy remark cynically, "I guess they just blew in for a breath of fresh air."

Racketeers have conceived the notion of carrying with them a small metal triangle, which when struck, duplicates the sound made when a quarter is dropped into a telephone box. In this way the boys call long distance, drop nickels and strike their triangle, so that the operator believes a large coin has been deposited. The stunt is clumsy, impractical and since it can be used only on occasions, cannot even be called a racket. But some men have their pride, and so chesty are they over petty inventions of trickery, such as this one, that they use it just for the fun of using it.

My scout whispers in my ear the news that "Puck-like" is the favorite catch phrase of the hack writers of fiction just now. Last night the heroines had cold hair and husky voices. This year they are endowed with "Puck-like" faces, which sounds pretty terrible to me.

At a party lately, three of the guests talked nothing but Russian; four of us were Americans, with only some very bad French to assist us. Two guests were Dutch, but spoke French very well, and one Englishwoman knew enough Russian to help matters out a little. It was an odd, but somewhat amusing party. The Russians sang without accompaniment, and we all understood the music, anyhow. It was wild and weird and strangely beautiful.

WHY WE SELL THE WRONG STOCKS

When a speculator thinks the time has come to sell part of his securities, the obviously logical thing to do is to dispose of those that have risen sharply in price and keep those which have not yet had their upward move. It does not take much reasoning to see that the ones which have advanced most are probably perilously high, while those which have stood still are less likely to drop. Hence if you sell the ones in which you have a profit and keep the others, when the tardy ones advance you will then have a profit in all.

The only trouble with this reasoning is that though fairly logical, it is hopelessly wrong. The stocks which advanced in price probably did so because of their merit and they are there-

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

The Bronze Effect in Beauty

The sophisticated beauty, she who makes use of every means to produce a striking effect by her appearance, is taking up a new and fascinating mode of make-up. This innovation first made its appearance in France. It immediately gained vogue in Lido, where the Italian and German aristocrats, among the cosmopolites of Biarritz, with the sporting crowds of Deauville and the smartest of English sojourners at Le Touquet. The news of it was scarcely out before American women, at the fashionable winter resorts, began taking it up. Now the ultra-modern women are beginning to use it in all our big cities, and I predict it is going to have a place of prominence among beauty fashions this season.

This new make-up gives one a regular beach bronze appearance. It is a sort of sun-tan, midway between the most becoming kind of sunburn and a flattering tan. It comes in a semi-cream form and is applied on dampened cotton all over the face, neck and hands, and if one is at the beach on the arms and legs too. The effect is unusually striking. It is waterproof, so that one can play with the waves to one's heart's content without being afraid of the make-up coming off in streaks and patches.

I have seen many chic New Yorkers recently who display beautiful coats of coppery tan, without ever having been near the southern beaches. They wear it with their street clothes, and it is really as flattering as health itself. Some of them wear it in the evening, but others, especially those who like variety, are becoming tanned in the daytime, and have clear, transparent fair complexion with their ballroom décolleté.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

TRICHINOSIS

I notice in one of the weekly bulletins of the Department of Public Health of California that there were 34 cases of trichinosis in California during 1927. That's 34 cases too many.

The disease Trichinosis means that the trichina worms have taken up their habitat in the body. But these worms first have had their habitat in a hog or a pig (any difference?). If the inspection of the meat at slaughter houses is thorough enough, trichinosis meat should be discovered and discarded. However, some evidently got by in California last year, or else these patients used their own infected animals for food. Even in this case, they would have escaped trichinosis if the pork had been thoroughly cooked.

On re-reading the children, I see that most of these cases reported were due to home-made sausages.

If you will remember to cook pork until it is thoroughly done throughout, so there is no trace of red in any portion, the trichina, if any are present, will be killed. They apparently do not harm if they are thoroughly dead.

Reading this article recalls to my mind an interesting case in the Los Angeles County hospital when I was an interne there and had charge of the laboratory. I was asked to examine the blood of a man who had come in with a diagnosis of acute rheumatism. He had been treated for this disease for some time with no benefit.

This patient's blood showed a very much larger percentage of eosinophils than normal (an eosinophil is a white blood cell which is present usually in the proportion of 2 per cent in the blood). His blood ran about 20 per cent, as I remember. These cells are markedly increased only under certain conditions; intestinal and body parasites are among them.

Upon my report, the physician in charge of the case took a little piece from the muscle in the calf of the patient's leg. This I sliced extremely thin and examined under the microscope. Boy! What an interesting sight! There were the trichinae, curled down and curled on themselves between the muscle fibers, but still expanding and contracting. Every nurse and doctor in the hospital came in to see it, it was so interesting and unusual.

Household Hints

MENU HINT

DINNER

Potato Soup
Chicken à la King
Mashed Potatoes
Lemon Cream Sponge Cake
Tea or Coffee

Today's Recipes

Chicken à la King—two cups chicken diced, four tablespoons butter, four tablespoons chopped green pepper, two tablespoons flour, one teaspoon salt, two cups milk, two tablespoons chopped pimientos, one-half cup canned mushrooms, six slices butter toast or patty shells. Melt butter, add green pepper and cook until pepper is soft, then add flour mixed with salt. Stir until smooth. Add chicken, pimientos and mushrooms cut in pieces. Serve on toast or in patty shells and garnish with parsley. A can of tuna fish or any flaked fish may be used in place of the chicken.

Lemon Cream Sponge Pie — Two tablespoons butter, one cup sugar, three tablespoons lemon juice, one cup sweet milk, six level tablespoons flour, three eggs, rind of one-half lemon. Cream butter and half of sugar. Add egg yolks lightly beaten. Add grated rind and the lemon juice. Take remaining half of sugar, mix well in the flour, add milk and stir well. After mixture is well blended stir in the stiffly beaten egg whites; stir in well.

Don't Spoil Them

If you should find that you have not enough fat to fry them, croquettes, don't spoil them by frying in insufficient fat, but beat the croquettes in a greased pan and bake in a hot oven.

lates them and the patient will support them, perhaps without much disturbance, for the rest of his life.

When the trichinae pork is first eaten, the embryos are released from the meat and cause intense intestinal and stomach symptoms and diarrhea, and many are passed. Those that are not passed strike through the intestinal wall, enter the blood stream and so into the muscles and other organs.

Good, clean pork is a perfectly wholesome food, as wholesome as any food; but because trichinosis pork does occasionally get into the market, it is always extremely wise to see that your pork is well done; and this not only on account of trichina worms, but on account of the tape worm embryos which the pork may harbor.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Admiral Magruder made a mistake recently. So did Admiral Plunkett.

They made the same mistake. Each expressed himself in an incendiary manner; neither had previously obtained his superiors' permission to do it.

Naturally they were similarly disciplined?

Why, no, not quite alike. In fact, one of the two wasn't disciplined at all.

The other, yes, somewhat—if the loss of his command and the blighting of a long, very distinguished career, just as it was drawing to a close, can fairly be described as discipline.

Admiral Magruder made the mistake of saying that the navy department was wasting money—about one dollar in every three spent by it.

He said it at what "big navy men" considered a particularly unfortunate moment—just as they were trying to get a larger allowance, in terms of billions.

Admiral Plunkett made the mistake of predicting war with England—soon, too.

Any moment is an unfortunate moment for an official in a highly responsible position to broadcast a prediction of that sort, in the opinion of large numbers of people who feel that precisely such bellicose utterances as Admiral Plunkett's have a good deal to do with bringing on wars.

I'll not ask you to guess, dear reader, on whose neck the disciplinary ax fell—on Admiral Magruder's or Admiral Plunkett's?—because you know that already. Yes, it fell on Admiral Magruder's.

Magruder was relieved of his job at the Philadelphia navy yard and shelled—to stay shelled until the earliest minute when he can be retired.

Plunkett had a few rounds of oratorical hot shot fired at him in congress, but, a staunch old armor-clad, they didn't hurt him. And, naturally the English press fired salvoes, but they didn't even hit him. As for the "big navy men"—nobody ever was quite so popular with them as Admiral Plunkett.

But I'll bet you can't guess the argument that the "big navyites" put up in support of their contention that Magruder got just what was coming to him, while Plunkett, entitled to an engrossed vote of thanks, with illuminated initials, on the best parchment paper.

Magruder, they point out, preached economy—so that his criticism was purely destructive. But Plunkett shouted "war" that's constructive.

Representations in Admiral Magruder's behalf were made to President Coolidge.

He could only shrug—couldn't interfere with navy discipline.

Kicks were made to him concerning Admiral Plunkett. He didn't seem to like what Admiral Plunkett had said, very well—indeed, everybody recognizes that the admiral committed an indiscretion—but his heart was in the right place.

As the president suggested, army and navy officers are apt to exaggerate when they're fighting for big appropriations—he doesn't know of anything he can do about it—they can't be muzzled.

Is there, herein, a lesson for army and navy officers?

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I can scarcely imagine that there are such nice boys running loose, and here I am waiting for one of them to find me. I hope W. W. H. will see this so that he will know that there are nice girls."

W. W. H. you are very fortunate to have some pals, for I don't even have a girl friend because I won't drink, smoke or pet and am considered slow. However, I'm going to tell you—wait and the right girl will appear when you are least expecting it. Remember that for all the disappointments and "lost hopes" in life there is always something to come that will make up for them—something bigger and better will take their place. HELEN.

Oh, there are plenty of nice boys, Helen, looking for nice girls just like you. You are right, wait for the right boy for you, but at the same time why not have a good time while waiting? You see, if you mingle a little and observe other boys and girls you may discover that although they may behave and act somewhat differently than you, they still may be fine and very much worth while.

When October and May propose to wed, what should the answer be?

Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl 18 and am keeping company with a man of 40. He has proposed. Many say he is too old for me. I love him very much and want your good advice.

"Discouraged Baby." When you are his present age, dear—just in the prime of life—he will be 62—quite an old man. Look about you, my dear, at that age and women of 40 and see if you think they would be happy together. Generally such a difference in ages makes or unhappiness.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

PLANNING THE SUMMER HOME

The red bandana handkerchief was so long that Peter wondered how the Robins were going to manage it. Then a bright idea struck him.

"If you will allow me to tie that in a bow under your chin, Mrs. Robin," said Peter, "I think it will be easy for you to travel with it, and when you reach the nest and are ready to make use of it, your husband can soon untie the knot with his sharp beak. Besides it will make you a shawl as red as your husband's red vest."

"What a splendid idea!" exclaimed Mrs. Robin. "What do you think about it, husband?"

"It seems the best arrangement that can be made," agreed her mate, enthusiastically. "It will save us the trouble of tugging it up to the nest and you know from experience that if one of us flies a bit faster than the other when we have anything in our beaks we are liable to tear it or one of us will drop our corner."

"Step up, wife, and let's see how it is going to look. Oh, my dear! How becoming! Red is certainly your color. You look as pretty now as on the day I married you and just as young!"

You have always envied me my red vest. Now you have a red shawl. What a pity, you can't wear it all the time!"

"Kip! Kip!" chirped Mrs. Robin, delightedly. "Do I really look so nice as all that? But you can't turn my head, husband dear. I am too old a bird for that. I am glad that the thing is becoming to me and perhaps I shall wear it for a while, but I have more to think about than my looks."

"The matter that is on my mind now is the building of our nest and after that the eggs, and then our babies. And the best way to have the children love their home and stay in it is to make it so attractive that they will never want to roam and get into goodness knows, what trouble. Youngsters are sure to stay content if they have something so pretty to look at all the time as this red ribbon. No, husband, I have made up my mind to use this for the draperies in our home and that is all there is to it!"

"What you say goes, my wife," laughed Mr. Robin Redbreast. "After all I shouldn't care to see you dressed up like that all the time. You wouldn't look natural. But it seems to me as if we were doing things backward. We can't have draperies in a home until we have built that home's foundation. It is a bit early, but I think I will start looking about for sticks and straw. The wind must have blown down a lot of sticks and as for the straw I ought to be able to find plenty of them around the barn. It takes time to collect them—the building of the nest is not a bit hard, although I will say that I have the best of it. It is not one-half as tiresome to fetch the material as it is to shape the nest. And you just ought to see my wife do that! She works like a streak of lightning." Robin Redbreast blamed with pride upon his plump little wife. "I should like to watch Mrs. Robin at work!" said Peter. "How does Mrs. Robin shape her nest?"

"Let wife speak for herself!" chirped Mr. Robin.

"There really isn't a thing interesting about it," remarked Mrs. Robin Redbreast modestly. "First I lay a foundation of mud that Mr. Robin helps me to carry to the tree and I always take care to build where two or three branches meet so that no wind can shake the house down. Then I sink down in the mud and with my beak as a model I pack about me all the sticks and straw that husband brings and decorate it on the outside as prettily as I can—one season we twined it about with strips of newspapers and the effect was lovely. Then it is all finished."

As are so many other matters in that mystery, show business.

They give you a deck of very presentable playing cards when you eat at the Park Lane. At Alice Footie MacDougall's the bonus comes at tea time, when the fanciest tray of gadgets is passed around with the brew. Cherries, cloves, lemon and orange slices, and various other decorative, tasty but unnecessary trimmings are passed with the tea. At Drake's, in Forty-second street, the giveaway, which chiefly attracts women patrons, is the quality of small, spiced rolls always on the tables. The Waldorf provides a free table of mints and other candies for its luncheon guests. Henry's, the Swedish restaurant in Thirty-fifth street, appears its vogue by providing a free table of delicious hors d'oeuvres in the Scandinavian manner. Another Scandinavian eating place in Forty-fifth street, just off Lexington avenue, employs the same generous method, and proves it to be good business.

During the recent sewer scandal in Queens, the Electric Light and Power workers of the Borough, threw an elaborate party at the Pennsylvania. A friend tells me that he overheard a bell boy remark, cynically, "I guess they just blew in for a breath of fresh air."

Racketeers have conceived the notion of carrying with them a small metal triangle, which when struck, duplicates the sound made when a quarter is dropped into a telephone box. In this way the boys call long distance, drop nickels and strike their triangle, so that the operator believes a larger coin has been deposited. The stunt is clumsy, impractical and since it can be used only on occasions, cannot even be called a racket. But some men have their pride, and so chesty are they over petty inventions of trickery, such as this one, that they use it just for the fun of using it.

My scout whispers in my ear the news that "Puck-like" is the favorite catch phrase of the hack writers of fiction just now. Last year all the heroines had coin-gold hair and husky voices. This year they are endowed with "Puck-like" faces, which sounds pretty terrible to me.

At a party lately, three of the guests talked nothing but Russian; four of us were Americans, with only some very bad French to assist us. Two guests were Dutch, but spoke French very well, and one Englishwoman knew enough Russian to help matters out a little. It was an odd, but somewhat amusing party. The Russians sang without accompaniment, and we all understood the music, anyhow. It was wild and weird and strangely beautiful.

WHY WE SELL THE

WROTH STOCKS

When a speculator thinks the time has come to sell part of his securities, the obviously logical thing to do is to dispose of those that have risen sharply in price and keep those which have not yet had their upward move. It does not take much reasoning to see that the ones which have advanced most are probably perilously high, while those which have stood still are less likely to drop. Hence if you sell the ones in which you have a profit and keep the others, when the tardy ones advance you will then have a profit in all.

The only trouble with this reasoning is that though fairly logical, it is hopelessly wrong. The stocks which advanced in price probably did so because of their merit and they are there-

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

The Bronze Effect in Betrayal

The sophisticated beauty, she who makes use of every means to produce a striking effect by her appearance, is taking up a new and fascinating mode of make-up. This innovation first made its appearance in France. It immediately gained vogue in Lido, where rich Americans mingle with the Italian and German aristocrats, among the cosmopolites of Biarritz, with the sporting crowds of Deauville and the smartest of English sojourners at Le Torquet. The news of it was scarcely out, before American women, at the fashionable winter resorts, began taking it up. Now the ultra-modern women are beginning to use it in all our big cities, and I predict it is going to have a place of prominence among beauty fashions this season.

This new make-up gives one a regular beach bronze appearance. It is a sort of sun-tan, midway between the most becoming kind of sunburn and a flattering tan. It comes in a semi-cream form and is applied on dampened cotton all over the face, neck and hands, and if one is at the beach on the arms and legs too. The effect is unusually striking. It is waterproof, so that one can play with the waves to one's heart's content without being afraid of the make-up coming off in streaks and patches.

I have seen many chic New Yorkers recently who display beautiful coats of coppery tan, without ever having been near the southern beaches. They wear it with their street clothes, and it is really as flattering as health itself. Some of them wear it in the evening, but others, especially those who like variety, are becomingly tanned in the daytime, and have clear, transparently fair complexions with their ballroom decollete.

Diet and Health

TRICHINOSIS

I notice in one of the weekly bulletins of the Department of Public Health of California that there were 34 cases of trichinosis in California during 1927. That's 34 cases too many.

The disease Trichinosis means that the trichina worms have taken up their habitat in the body. But these worms first have had their habitat in a hog or a pig (any difference?). If the inspection of the meat at slaughterhouses is thorough enough, trichinosis need not be discovered and discarded. However, some evidently got by in California last year, or else these patients used their own infected animals for food. Even in this case, they would have escaped trichinosis if the pork had been thoroughly cooked.

On re-reading the children, I see that most of these cases reported were due to home-made sausages.

If you will remember to cook pork until it is thoroughly done throughout, so there is no trace of red in any portion, the trichinae, if any are present, will be killed. They apparently do not harm if they are thoroughly dead.

Reading this article recalls to my mind an interesting case in the Los Angeles County hospital when I was an interne there and had charge of the laboratory. I was asked to examine the blood of a man who had come in with a diagnosis of acute rheumatism. He had been treated for this disease for some time with no benefit.

This patient's blood showed a very much larger percentage of eosinophils than normal (an eosinophil is a white blood cell which is present usually in the proportion of 2 per cent in the blood). His blood ran about 20 per cent, as I remember. These cells are markedly increased only under certain conditions; intestinal and body parasites are among them. Upon my report, the physician in charge of the case took a little piece from the muscle in the calf of the patient's leg. This I sliced extremely thin and examined under the microscope. Boy! What an interesting sight! There were the trichinae, curled down and contracting themselves between the muscle fibers, but still expanding and contracting. Every nurse and doctor in the hospital came in to see it, it was so interesting and unusual.

This patient died, I am sorry to state, because he had gotten so many of the trichinae. He had eaten some practically raw pork sausages.

The recovery of a trichinosis patient depends upon the number of parasites in the infected pork eaten. (The mortality rate is about 5 per cent.) If there are very few, nature soon encapsu-

Today's Recipes

Chicken a la King—two cups chicken diced, four tablespoons butter, four tablespoons chopped green pepper, two tablespoons flour, one to two tablespoons milk, two tablespoons chopped pimientos, one-half cup canned mushrooms, six slices butter toast or patty shells. Melt butter, add green pepper and cook until pepper is soft, then add flour mixed with salt. Stir until blended, add milk. Stir until smooth. Add chicken, pimientos and mushrooms and 11 pieces. Serve on toast or patty shells and garnish with parsley. A can of tuna fish or any flaked fish may be used in place of the chicken.

Lemon Cream Sponge Pie—two tablespoons butter, one cup sugar, three tablespoons lemon juice, one cup sweet milk, six level tablespoons flour, three eggs, rind of one-half lemon. Cream butter and half of sugar. Add egg yolks lightly beaten. Add grated rind and the lemon juice. Take remaining half of sugar, mix well in the flour, add milk and stir well. After mixture is well blended stir in the stiffly beaten egg whites; stir in well.

Don't Spoil Them

If you should find that you have not enough fat to fry the croquettes, don't spoil them by frying in insufficient fat, but put the croquettes in a greased pan and bake in a hot oven.

lates them and the patient will support them, perhaps without much disturbance, for the rest of his life.

When the trichinosis pork is first eaten, the embryos are released from the meat and cause intense intestinal and stomach symptoms and diarrhea, and many are passed. Those that are not passed strike through the intestinal wall, enter the blood stream and so into the muscles and other organs.

Good, clean pork is a perfectly wholesome food, as wholesome as any food; but because trichinosis pork does occasionally get into the market, it is always extremely wise to see that your pork is well done; and this not only on account of trichina worms, but on account of the tape worm embryos which the pork may harbor.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Admiral Magruder made a mistake recently. So did Admiral Plunkett.

They made the same mistake. Each expressed himself in an incendiary manner; neither had previously obtained his superiors' permission to do it.

Naturally they were similarly disciplined.

Why, no, not quite alike. In fact, one of the two wasn't disciplined at all.

The other, yes, somewhat—if the loss of his command and the blighting of a long, very distinguished career, just as it was drawing to a close, can fairly be described as discipline.

Admiral Magruder made the mistake of saying that the navy department was wasting money—about one dollar in every three spent by it.

He said it at what "big navy men" considered a particularly unfortunate moment—just as they were trying to get a larger allowance, in terms of billions.

Admiral Plunkett made the mistake of predicting war with England—soon, too.

Any moment is an unfortunate moment for an official in a highly responsible position to broadcast a prediction of that sort, in the opinion of large numbers of people who feel that precisely such bellicose utterances as Admiral Plunkett's have a good deal to do with bringing on war.

I'll not ask you to guess, dear reader, on whose neck the disciplinary ax fell—on Admiral Magruder's or Admiral Plunkett's?—because you know that already.

Yes, it fell on Admiral Magruder's.

Magruder was relieved of his job at the Philadelphia navy yard and shod—no stay shelled until the earliest minute when he can be retired.

Plunkett had a few rounds of oratorical hot shot fired at him in congress, but, a staunch old armor-clad, they didn't hurt him. Ant naturally the English press fired salvoes, but they didn't even hit him. As for the "big navy men"—nobody ever was quite so popular with them as Admiral Plunkett.

But I'll bet you can't guess the argument that the "big navyites" put up in support of their contention that Magruder got just what was coming to him, while Plunkett's entitled to an engrossed vote of thanks, with illuminated initials, on the best parchment paper.

Magruder, they point out, preached economy—so that his criticism was purely destructive. But Plunkett shouted "war" that's constructive.

Representations in Admiral Magruder's behalf were made to President Coolidge.

He could only shrug—couldn't interfere with navy discipline.

Kicks were made to him concerning Admiral Plunkett. He didn't seem to like what Admiral Plunkett had said, very well—indeed, everybody recognizes that the admiral committed an indiscretion—but his heart was in the right place.

As the president suggested, army and navy officers are apt to exaggerate when they're fighting for big appropriations. He doesn't know of anything he can do about it—they can't be muzzled.

Is there, herein, a lesson for army and navy officers?

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I can scarcely imagine that there are such nice boys running loose, and here I am waiting for one of them to find me. I hope W. W. H. will see this so that he will know that there are nice girls. W. W. H., you are very fortunate to have some pals, for I don't even have a girl friend because I won't drink, smoke or pet and am considered slow. However, I'm going to tell you—wait and the right girl will appear when you are least expecting it. Remember that for all the disappointments and 'lost hopes' in life there is always something to come that will make up for them—something bigger and better will take their place. HELEN."

Oh, there are plenty of nice boys, Helen, looking for nice girls just like you. You are right, wait for the right boy for you, but at the same time why not have a good time while waiting? You see, if you mingle a little and observe other boys and girls you may discover that although they may behave and act somewhat differently than you, they still may be fine and very much worthwhile.

When October and May propose to wed, what should the answer be?

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am girl 18, and am keeping company with a man of 40. He has proposed. Many say he is too old for me. I love him very much and want your good advice."

"Discouraged Baby." When you are his present age, dear—just in the prime of life—he will be 62—quite an old man, you see. Look about you at men that age and women of 40 and see if you think they would be happy together. Generally such a difference in ages makes or unhappiness.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

PLANNING THE SUMMER HOME

The red bandana handkerchief was so long that Peter wondered how the Robins were going to manage it. Then a bright idea struck him.

"If you will allow me to tie that in a bow under your chin, Mrs. Robin," said Peter, "I think it will be easy for you to travel with it, and when you reach the nest and are ready to make use of it, your husband can soon untie the knot with his sharp beak. Besides it will make you a shawl as red as your husband's red vest."

"What a splendid idea!" exclaimed Mrs. Robin. "What do you think about it, husband?"

"It seems the best arrangement that can be made," agreed her mate, enthusiastically. "It will save us the trouble of tugging it up to the nest and you know from experience that if one of us flies a bit faster than the other when we have anything in our beaks we are liable to tear it or one of us will drop our corner."

"Step up, wife, and let's see how it is going to look. Oh, my dear! How becoming! Red is certainly your color. You look as pretty now as the day you married me and just as young."

You have always envied me my red vest. Now you have a red shawl. What a pity you can't wear it all the time!"

"Kip! Kip!" chirped Mrs. Robin, delightedly. "Do I really look so nice as all that? But you can't turn my head, husband dear. I am too old a bird for that. I am glad that the thing is becoming to me and perhaps I shall wear it for a while, but I have more to think about than my looks."

"The matter that is on my mind now is the building of our nest and after that the eggs, and then our babies. And the best way to have the children love their home and stay in it is to make it so attractive that they will never want to roam and get into goodness knows, what trouble. Youngsters are sure to stay content if they have something so pretty to look at all the time as this red ribbon. No, husband, I have made up my mind to use this for the draperies in our home and that is all there is to it!"

"What you say goes, wife," laughed Mr. Robin. "Redbreast—after all I shouldn't care to see you dressed up like that all the time. You wouldn't look natural. But it seems to me as if we were doing things backward. We can't have draperies in a home until we have built that home's foundation. It is a bit early, but I think I will start looking about for sticks and straw. The wind must have blown down a lot of sticks and as for the straw, I ought to be able to find plenty of them around the barn. It takes time to collect them—the building of the nest is not a bit hard, although I will say that I have the best of it. It is not one-half as tiresome to fetch the material as it is to shape the nest. And you just ought to see my wife do that! She works like a streak of lightning." Robin Redbreast beamed with pride upon his plump little wife. "I should like to watch Mrs. Robin at work," said Peter. "How does Mrs. Robin shape her nest?"

"There really isn't a thing interesting about it," remarked Mrs. Robin Redbreast modestly. "First I lay a foundation of mud that Mr. Robin helps me to carry to the tree and I always take care to build where two or three branches meet so that no wind can shake the house down. Then I sink down in the mud and with my beak I pack about me all the sticks and straw that husband brings and decorate it on the outside as prettily as I can—one season we twined it about with strips of newspapers and the effect was lovely. When it is all finished outside I line it with something soft, feathers perhaps that we pick up in the barnyard, or grass if we can find any. Then—and Mrs. Robin looked very happy—then I lay my eggs and there is just room in the nest for five."

Famous Auto Five Loses To Chryslers Here 53-39

LOCALS DROP FIRST GAME WEDNESDAY TO DAYTON LOOP TEAM

Visitors Take Early Lead
---Le Sourd Out Of Line Up

The winning streak of the Famous Auto Five was brought to an abrupt end when the Dayton Chryslers, leaders in the Dayton Commercial League, repulsed the Xenia independent team by the decisive score of 53 to 39 in a basketball game at Central High School gymnasium Wednesday night.

The local quintet was greatly weakened by the absence of Bill LeSourd, regular forward, from the lineup.

The visitors jumped into the lead at the start of the contest and were never seriously in danger of defeat. The flashy offense of the Chryslers landed the team out in front 25 to 10 at the half. Xenia outscored the Dayton quintet by one point in the final session, due to the basketballing ability of "Butch" Gagner.

The Chryslers registered twenty field goals during the game as compared with fifteen for Xenia. The locals, however, outscored Dayton from the free throw line, converting sixteen chances into nine points, while the visitors were making good one foul in five attempts.

Akers and Scott, Dayton forwards, were the offensive stars of the contest, the former registering eleven baskets and one foul for twenty-three points, while his running mate tallied sixteen markers, all on field goals. Adelberger, Dayton pivot-man, contributed ten points.

After being held without a field goal in the opening half, Gagner, star Xenia forward, ran wild in the final session, shooting eight baskets and a foul. Added to his two free throws of the first half, Gagner's total for the evening in the scoring line was nineteen points. Leopold and Smith played good games at center and guard, respectively, the former making eight points and the latter nine.

The Xenia quintet was outclassed on this occasion but expects to return to the victory column next week.

CEDARVILLE PLAYS ASHLAND COLLEGE HOME COMING GAME

Boasting a winning streak of five straight games, the Cedarville College "Yellow-Jackets" will meet Ashland College in the annual home-coming basketball game Friday night at Alford gymnasium.

Cedarville confounded the dopsters by administering a neat 48 to 33 lacing to Bliss Business College at Columbus Tuesday night, a feat heretofore never accomplished by the school.

Previously Bliss had not been defeated by Cedarville in seven games played in the last five years. Bliss also holds a ten-point victory over Wilmington College this season.

Which indicates Coach Borst's quintet, bearing out early predictions, is one of the strongest among the smaller colleges in the state.

Cedarville has won twelve games and lost five to date. Once the team won six straight games before being defeated and the latest winning streak has mounted to five successive victories.

Ashland College should provide a battle Friday night. Despite the small enrollment at this school, winning basketball teams are put out every season.

The home-coming contest will be preceded by a banquet in the gymnasium at 5:30 p. m. with the basketball tussle starting about 8 o'clock. Seats for the banquet have been placed on sale.

EAST HIGH SCHOOL BEATS RED BIRDS

feated the Red Birds 43 to 29 in a game played as a preliminary to the Famous Auto Five-Dayton Chryslers contest Wednesday night at Central High School gymnasium.

The contest was fairly close throughout and ended East High's second straight victory.

Good form was shown by all the players. Buford was high-point man of the contest, scoring twenty-one points, while the team had good passwork.

East High will have an opportunity to avenge an early season setback in a game with the Athletics High quintet of Indianapolis, Ind., at the East gym Friday night, February 10.

POSTPONE HEARING

After considerable discussion by County Commissioners Wednesday relating to the application filed January 9, by Louise Breakfield and John and Louise Breakfield for the latter to the single county ditch, known as the Lucas ditch, the hearing on the question was adjourned for further consideration until February 15 at 10 a. m.

MERCHANTS HOLD FIRST ANNUAL BOWLING TOURNEY NEXT WEEK

Formal announcement of the first annual bowling tournament to be held under the auspices of Xenia merchants, starting February 17, was made Thursday.

Contests will be rolled on the Recreation alleys in this city. Entries in the five-man division, two-man teams and singles will close Tuesday, February 14.

Starting the following Friday afternoon, the tournament will continue until teams in every division have rolled.

Tourney games will be bowled only on Friday and Saturday afternoons and evenings on dates preferred by the entrants.

Entrance fee for five-man teams will be $5, for the doubles, $2 and for the singles, $1, games included. A number of entries in the five-man division have already been received, it is announced.

The tournament is open to teams of other cities as well as Xenia. Teams are expected to enter from Springfield, Dayton, Troy, Greenfield, Washington C. H., and other surrounding cities.

Entry blanks are available at the Recreation Parlors. They may be used for all three or any one event desired.

Rules of the American Bowling Congress will govern the tournament.

Stake events may be revived at county fair here this year

Revival of stake harness races at the annual Greene County Fair this year is contemplated, following a joint conference between representatives of the fair boards of Greene, Clinton and Fayette Counties at Washington C. H. Wednesday night, in which a uniform classification of stakes was discussed.

The Madison County Fair Board failed to send representatives to the meeting.

Final arrangements are expected to be made at a second meeting to be held in Xenia next Thursday night.

Meanwhile, the local fair board is expected to hold a meeting and approve or disapprove the plan.

Annual fairs of Greene, Clinton, Fayette and Madison Counties will be held in the order named in August a week apart.

It is planned that Greene, Clinton and Fayette Counties, at least, shall provide $1,000 stake races for pacers and trotters in about the 2:14 to 2:16 class. In addition two colts races would be held with purses of $500 for three-year-old juveniles.

It has been a number of years since Greene County has had a stake race at the yearly fair.

The stake race plan is particularly attractive to horsemen as it enables a pacer or trotter to race in one stake all season, without the possibility that the horse's mark may be lowered, regardless of the amount of money won.

The racing dates of Greene County are:

Famous Auto Five Loses To Chryslers Here 53-39

LOCALS DROP FIRST GAME WEDNESDAY TO DAYTON LOOP TEAM

Visitors Take Early Lead --Le Sourd Out Of Line Up

The winning streak of the Famous Auto Five was brought to an abrupt end when the Dayton Chryslers, leaders in the Dayton Commercial League, repulsed the Xenia independent team by the decisive score of 53 to 39 in a basketball game at Central High School gymnasium Wednesday night.

The local quintet was greatly weakened by the absence of Bill LeSourd, regular forward, from the lineup.

The visitors jumped into the lead at the start of the contest and were never seriously in danger of defeat. The flashy offense of the Chryslers landed the team on the front 25 to 10 at the half. Xenia outscored the Dayton quintet by one point in the final session, due to the basket-shooting ability of "Butch" Genger.

The Chryslers registered twenty field goals during the game as compared with fifteen for Xenia. The locals, however, outscored Dayton from the free throw line, converting sixteen chances into nine points, while the visitors were making good one foul in five attempts.

Akers and Scott, Dayton forwards, were the offensive stars of the contest, the former registering eleven baskets and one foul for twenty-three points, while his running mate tallied sixteen markers, all on field goals, Adelberger, Dayton pivot-man, contributed ten points.

After being held without a field goal in the opening half, Genger, star Xenia forward, ran wild in the final session, shooting eight baskets and a foul. Added to his two free throws of the first half, Genger's total for the evening in the scoring line was nineteen points. Leopold and Smith played good games at center and guard, respectively, the former making eight points and the latter nine.

The Xenia quintet was outclassed on this occasion but expects to return to the victory column next week.

CEDARVILLE PLAYS ASHLAND COLLEGE HOME COMING GAME

Boasting a winning streak of five straight games, the Cedarville College "Yellow-Jackets" will meet Ashland College in the annual home-coming basketball game Friday night at Alford gymnasium.

Cedarville confounded the dopsters by administering a neat 48 to 33 lacing to Bliss Business College at Columbus Tuesday night, a feat heretofore never accomplished by the school.

Previously Bliss had not been defeated by Cedarville in seven games played in the last five years. Bliss also holds a ten-point victory over Wilmington College this season, which indicates Coach Bors's quintet, bearing out early predictions, is one of the strongest among the smaller colleges in the state.

Cedarville has won twelve games and lost five to date. Once the team won six straight games before being defeated and the latest winning streak has mounted to five successive victories.

Ashland College should provide a battle Friday night. Despite the small enrollment at this school, winning basketball teams are put out every season.

The home-coming contest will be preceded by a banquet in the gymnasium at 5:30 p. m. with the basketball tussle starting about 8 o'clock. Seats for the banquet have been placed on sale.

East High School defeated the Red Birds 43 to 29 in a game played as a preliminary to the Famous Auto Five-Dayton Chryslers contest Wednesday night at Central High School gymnasium.

The contest was fairly close throughout and marked East High's second straight victory.

Good form was shown by all the players. Buford was high-point man of the contest, scoring twenty-one points, while the team had good passing work.

East High will have an opportunity to avenge an early season set-back in a game with the At-Lucks High quintet of Indianapolis, Ind., at the East gym Friday night, February 10.

MERCHANTS HOLD FIRST ANNUAL BOWLING TOURNEY NEXT WEEK

Formal announcement of the first annual bowling tournament to be held under the auspices of Xenia merchants, starting February 17, was made Thursday.

Contests will be rolled on the Recreation alleys in this city. Entries in the five-man division, two-man teams and singles will close Tuesday, February 14.

Starting the following Friday afternoon, the tournament will continue until teams in every division have rolled.

Tourney games will be bowled only on Friday and Saturday afternoons and evenings on dates preferred by the entrants.

STAKE EVENTS MAY BE REVIVED AT COUNTY FAIR HERE THIS YEAR

Revival of stake harness races at the annual Greene County Fair this year is contemplated, following a joint conference between representatives of the fair boards of Greene, Clinton and Fayette Counties at Washington C. H. Wednesday night, in which a uniform classification of stakes was discussed.

The Madison County Fair board failed to send representatives to the meeting.

Final arrangements are expected to be made at a second meeting to be held in Xenia next Thursday night.

Meanwhile, the local fair board is expected to hold a meeting and approve or disapprove the plan.

Annual fairs of Greene, Clinton, Fayette and Madison Counties will be held in the order named in August a week apart.

It is planned that Greene, Clinton and Fayette Counties, at least, shall provide $1,000 stake races for pacers and trotters in about the 2:14 to 2:16 class. In addition two colts races would be held with purses of $500 for three-year-old juveniles.

There has been a number of years since Greene County has had a stake race at the yearly fair.

The stake race plan is particularly attractive to horsemen as it enables a pacer or trotter to race in one stake all season, without the possibility that the horse's mark may be lowered, regardless of the amount of money won.

The racing dates of Greene County are:

The sum-total of pipe-joy

IF YOU could take an adding-machine and set down all the qualities you demand in a pipe-tobacco, such as fragrance, coolness, mildness, satisfaction, when you pulled the lever, the total would read: "Prince Albert." You can prove it with a pipe and a tin of P. A.

Throw back the hinged lid and revel in that aroma of the world's most popular pipe-tobacco. Put a load into the bowl of your pipe and light up. Draw that cool, refreshing smoke deep down and exhale slowly. That's

MOTHER CLAIMS SON VIOLATED PACT IN COURT SUIT FILED

Violation of an agreement entered into between a mother and her son October 16, 1919 is alleged in an injunction suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Mary Estridge against her son, Charles Estridge. Under the agreement, the defendant promised to purchase certain residence property as a home for his mother as long as she lived, and in return, the plaintiff agreed to board and room and care for the defendant, doing his washing, ironing, mending and perform general housework, the petition recites.

Plaintiff declares that her son actually bought an eight-room residence on Orchard St., Xenia, and that they lived together there until about December 20, 1927, the plaintiff furnishing board and lodging free of charge.

It is set forth that three of the plaintiff's daughters, Eliza Rogers, Lavina Allen and Lulu Estridge, advanced the defendant $70 to assist him in making a first down payment on the property for his mother's benefit.

Plaintiff asserts that she made certain permanent improvements on the residence, including wiring for electricity, papering the rooms, planting shrubbery and changing the plumbing, incurring an expense of $90, and has completely carried out her part of the contract.

However, on December 20, 1927, the defendant compelled his mother to vacate the property, refusing her the use of it, and is also threatening, and unless enjoined, will sell it and convert it into cash, according to the petition.

Under the contract plaintiff claims she is entitled to use of the property during her natural lifetime.

Plaintiff requests that her son be enjoined from selling or disposing of the house and that she be decreed a life estate in the property, Marshall and Marshall are attorneys for the plaintiff.

ROADSTER CASE SETTLED

Suit of Anna Mae Preckett, Dayton, against Omer Tate, as sheriff of Greene County, involving the ownership of a Marmon roadster confiscated by county authorities in a raid several months ago when the owners abandoned it and fled, has been settled and dismissed at the cost of the plaintiff, according to an entry on file in Common Pleas Court.

Sheriff Tate agreed to withdraw his claim to the car, which was stolen from storage and finally located in Dayton and recovered after having changed hands three times. Mrs. Preckett, the latest owner was innocent of the fact it had been taken from the sheriff's custody.

When Sheriff Tate obtained the machine once more the Dayton woman filed replevin action, seeking to recover the roadster and $100 damages for being deprived of its use for five days.

I Have Said in My Heart

By Idah McGlone Gibson MEMORIES

I have a young friend who always comes in and as he sits down he says: "I have been making memories"—which means he has been having a good time.

This dear chap has some wonderful stories about life—especially love and marriage.

"I don't see why almost everyone brackets these two words together," he said once, when he was more than usually confidential.

Love and marriage are not synonyms. Love is the modern definition of the great cosmic urge; and marriage is strictly a business by which the carrying on a race from generation to generation is made with dignity and dispatch.

The one is light and laughter, the lilt of music, and the fragrance of flowers. It is the joy of living. It is always changeless, yet ever changing. It is what everyone desires and few attain at its fullest and best.

Marriage is monotony. It is the work of making a living. It is ceaseless endeavor. In short, it is while his thoughts go back to his gay, care-free youth, and "Whenever he muses at evening At the sound of her vanishing name, The ghost of her kisses will haunt his lips And kindle his heart to flame. "Just now, being still young enough to make memories to think upon at some future day, I have a great sympathy for those who would try and believe that marriage is a never ending love affair sanctioned by the state and recommended by the church." Memo: Romantic memories must all be made before marriage, which sometimes means contentment but seldom thrills.

AUTOISTS CUT BY FLYING GLASS WHEN CARS COLLIDE WEDNESDAY

Mrs. Reva Carlisle, Towler Road, received lacerations on her face and her companion, Francis Ford, Wilmington, had the main artery in his forehead severed, when the auto driven by Ford, was struck by a colored man named Pettiford of Yellow Springs, on the southern edge of Yellow Springs, Wednesday night.

Mrs. Carlisle and Ford were returning to Xenia from Springfield when the accident occurred. The Pettiford car was going in the opposite direction. Pettiford's auto sideswiped the other machine, which had pulled into the side of the road to permit the other car to pass.

Pettiford said he was blinded by lights of Ford's car, but the latter says he was driving with dimmers and a spotlight. Both machines were sedans and were both badly damaged. Mrs. Carlisle and Ford were cut by the broken glass from the windshield. They were treated at the offices of Dr. L. L. Taylor in Yellow Springs and later by Dr. A. D. DeHaven, Xenia. Pettiford was uninjured.

DRUGS EXCITE THE KIDNEYS, DRINK WATER

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

VISION ACROSS ATLANTIC IS PERFECTED; SEE LONDON FOLKS

HARTSDALE, N. Y., Feb. 9. — Today man can see across the Atlantic ocean.

A group of fascinated observers sat in a darkened cellar last night and witnessed the first demonstration of television across the sea. They saw the image of a man and a woman in a London laboratory, 3,000 miles away.

"We are thoroughly satisfied with the results of the experiment," today declared R. M. Hart, at whose home the demonstration was conducted.

Hart is the operator of a short wave radio station here. The demonstration was conducted by the Baird Television Development Co., of London.

"There was a slight hum and then the images appeared on the screen," continued Hart, describing the experiment. "Although the figures were slightly blurred, one of those attending the demonstration thought he recognized one of the persons at the other end."

Hart said that tests had been going on before the public demonstration for six weeks "with varying degrees of success." He said that images in London were seen consistently but that the result on some nights was better than others due to reception conditions.

The device employed in the experiment was the television of John L. Baird, British inventor.

A FARMER IS KNOWN BY HIS MACHINERY

Did you ever see a prosperous, well kept, money making farm that was equipped with cheap, dilapidated or worn out machinery? Did you ever see a poor, run-down "one jump ahead of the sheriff" farm that was equipped with the best quality machinery? The farmer who is a good business man and who conducts his farm so that it gives him real profit knows that it pays to buy the best in machinery, even if he has to pay for it on the payment plan, rather than try to worry along with second rate equipment. The time he saves on tinkering with repeated repairs during busy seasons will more than make up for the difference in first cost.

THERE'LL BE NO CANNED STUFF FOR THESE YOUNG MEN—NO, SIR!

Miss Elma Lair, Pontiac, (Mich.) teacher, and six students of her domestic science class.

PONTIAC, Mich., Feb. 9.—bridge tea widowers, that growing body of men who, since the war, have meant life to the canning industry, have at last taken steps to appease the cravings of healthy appetites. And it begins to appear that, here at least, the siege of the can opener is at an end. Urged on by their fathers, the future manhood of the city is learning to cook. Theirs not for canned salmon and cocoa. Theirs for the better things—soups and meats and vegetables and all those delicacies that are dear to men. At the beginning of the present year, about fifteen boys at the Webster junior high school approached Miss Elma Lair, one of their teachers with the request that she teach them to cook. Miss Lair laughed at the request, but when it was repeated the next day by double the number she assented. Since then thirty boys have met with her two hours each week and not one has missed a class period.

Starting with the preparation of salads, the boys have been taken through courses in soup making, preparing meats and vegetables, serving and table manners. In only one phase of cooking are they admittedly deficient. That is in baking. Never in the history of the gas range, says their teacher, was there such an exhibition of the culinary art as on the day the boys tried to learn the intricacies of bread making.

Boys and teacher emerged from that battle flour scarred, although the boys still believe that, given another chance, they could do better. Later, the Bachelors club, as the boys call themselves, will give a banquet for their parents, preparing and serving the entire menu without assistance.

"Do the boys like their work?" Miss Lair was asked. "Do they like it? Last week one of the members was compelled to drop out because of his work in the school orchestra and I had seventeen applications for his place. I'll say they like it."

THERE'LL BE NO CANNED STUFF FOR THESE YOUNG MEN—NO, SIR!

Miss Elma Lair, Pontiac, (Mich.) teacher, and six students of her domestic science class.

PONTIAC, Mich., Feb. 9.—Bridge tea widowers, that growing body of men who, since the war, have meant life to the canning industry, have at last taken steps to appease the cravings of healthy appetites. And it begins to appear that, here at least, the siege of the can opener is at end.

Urged on by their fathers, the future manhood of the city is learning to cook. Theirs not for canned salmon and cocoa. Theirs for the better things—soups and meats and vegetables and all those delicacies that are dear to men.

At the beginning of the present year, about fifteen boys at the Webster junior high school approached Miss Elma Lair, one of their teachers with the request that she teach them to cook. Miss Lair laughed at the request, but when it was repeated the next day by double the number she assented. Since then thirty boys have met with her two hours each week and not one has missed a class period.

Starting with the preparation of salads, the boys have been taken through courses in soup making, preparing meats and vegetables, serving and table manners.

In only one phase of cooking are they admittedly deficient. That is in baking. Never in the history of the gas range, says their teacher, was there such an exhibition of the culinary art as on the day the boys tried to learn the intricacies of bread making.

Boys and teacher emerged from that battle flour scoured, although the boys still believe that, given another chance, they could do better.

Later, the Bachelors club, as the boys call themselves, will give a banquet for their parents, preparing and serving the entire menu without assistance.

"Do the boys like their work?" Miss Lair was asked.

"Do they like it? Last week one of the members was compelled to drop out because of his work in the school orchestra and I had seventeen applications for his place. I'll say they like it."

Farm Notes

OHIO DIDN'T SHARE
National agricultural prosperity in 1927 seems a myth to the Ohio farmer because it doesn't apply to him with anything like the force with which it applies to farmers in other states, it is pointed out by V. R. Wertz, of the staff of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, now attached to the rural economics department of the Ohio State University.

Low production of grains in Ohio was largely responsible for Ohio's gross income to agriculture falling behind that of agriculture generally, Wertz says. The gross income of Ohio farmers fell behind that of 1926, while the income of farmers in other states was rising. While corn production in the United States rose to 3 1/2 per cent above its 1926 level, the 1927 Ohio crop fell below that of 1926. Likewise the United States wheat crop of 1927 was 5 per cent above that of 1926, whereas the Ohio wheat crop was 28 per cent less. The oat crop of the United States was only 4 per cent under that of last year, but the Ohio crop fell 19 per cent below the 1926 yield.

"This is a case," says Wertz "in which the cause for a strengthened agricultural situation in the country at large, and more especially in the central western states, has worked to the detriment of Ohio, for while an increased production in the country as a whole lowered the price per bushel which Ohio farmers received for their grain, lower production in Ohio gave them less to sell."

East High School is celebrating Negro History Week. This is an annual observance directed by the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History. The purposes of the celebration are to popularize the study of Negro life and history and to secure more support for its promotion.

Thursday afternoon Prof. Carroll, head of the history department of Wilberforce and instructor in Negro history addressed the student body. The Rev. L. C. Ridley, Wilberforce, will speak Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Funeral services for Mrs. DeEtta Johnson, sister of Mrs. Lena Williamson, will be held at the Christian Church, Friday at 2 p. m. You are invited to attend the healing services held at the Apostolic Faith Church Thursday evening February 9 at 39 Taylor St., conducted by Elder C. Tolbert and others. Elder S. Kirby, pastor.

Growing Children

sometimes require a tonic as do their elders*

GIVE your child the right chance to develop, and you will not regret it in later years.

Many children become undernourished due to lack of appetite. Keep the appetite keen. Food nourishes the body and makes it grow.

Also watch Nature's warning for changes in the system. Skin troubles—pimples, boils and that sallow complexion—all foretell a body weakness.

In such cases, S.S.S. is the proper tonic. It improves the appetite; helps Nature build rich, red blood cells—those vitalizing elements in the blood that build and sustain the body.

In building rich, red blood cells, S.S.S. improves the processes by which the body is nourished.

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been helping children

the great tonic

and their elders regain strength and vitality.

Children like S.S.S. It is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants, and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Get the larger size. It is more economical.

* The physical welfare of the child is being given more attention by school authorities. Failure to keep up with class work and absence from school is probably due to a nervousness and rundown condition that may be largely attributed to a deficiency in red blood cells.

LINCOLN BIRTHDAY NOT LEGAL HOLIDAY

The honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Lemar, who on February 6 were married, forty-nine years. Mrs. E. C. Lemar's birthday was January 10; Mrs. John Lemar, January 23; John Lemar and Charles Mills, both January 27; Mrs. Charles Mills, February 1. A bouquet of sweetpeas and fern was the table decoration and a very pleasant time was enjoyed together. Miss Lella and Herman Lemar, of Cedarville College, were present.

Mrs. Mary Hill and family had for their guests, Sunday, Mrs. Cassie Commons, pastor of the Friends Church, Des Moines, Iowa and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Clockman, of Richmond, Indiana.

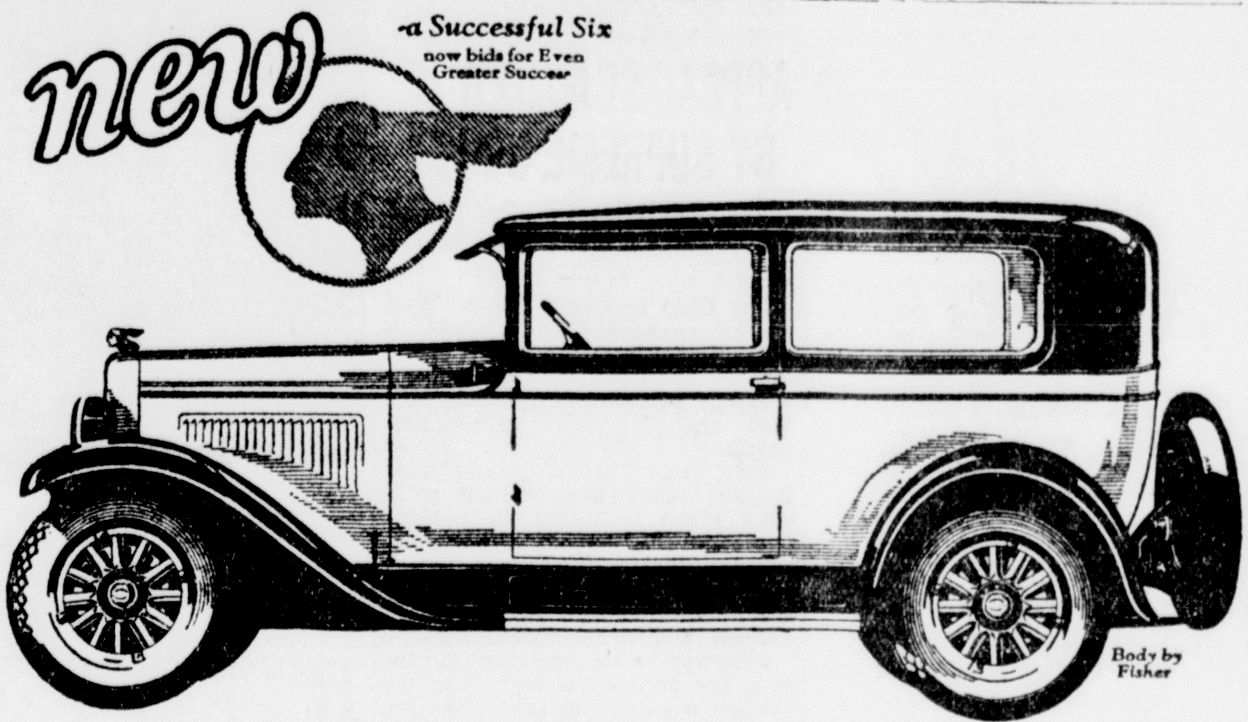

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Phillips and son, Eugene, are guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Phillips. Samuel Shanks, Jr., has gone to Cincinnati to accept a position as carpenter.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 9.—A ruling that Lincoln's birthday, February 12, "is only a holiday for the purpose of computing time in reference to payment and protest of commercial paper" was given today by Attorney General Edward C. Turner to State Treasurer Bert B. Hickley.

"The fact that February 12, 1928, falls on Sunday does not require state departments to observe Sunday, February 13, as a holiday," said Turner.

Turner declared, also, that the fact that Armistice Day this year falls on Sunday—November 11—does not require state departments to observe Monday, November 12, as a holiday.

In view of this ruling, it was expected that state departments will remain open both on February 13 and on November 12.

East High School is celebrating Negro History Week. This is an annual observance directed by the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History. The purposes of the celebration are to popularize the study of Negro life and history and to secure more support for its promotion.

Thursday afternoon Prof. Carroll, head of the history department of Wilberforce and instructor in Negro history addressed the student body. The Rev. L. C. Ridley, Wilberforce, will speak Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Funeral services for Mrs. DeEtta Johnson, sister of Mrs. Lena Williamson, will be held at the Christian Church, Friday at 2 p. m.

You are invited to attend the healing services held at the Apostolic Faith Church Thursday evening February 9 at 39 Taylor St., conducted by Elder C. Tolbert and others. Elder S. Kirby, pastor.

Growing Children

sometimes require a tonic as do their elders*

GIVE your child the right chance to develop, and you will not regret it in later years.

Many children become undernourished due to lack of appetite. Keep the appetite keen. Food nourishes the body and makes it grow.

Also watch Nature's warning for changes in the system. Skin troubles—pimples, boils and that sallow complexion—all foretell a body weakness.

In such cases, S.S.S. is the proper tonic. It improves the appetite; helps Nature build rich, red blood cells—those vitalizing elements in the blood that build and sustain the body.

In building rich, red blood cells, S.S.S. improves the processes by which the body is nourished.

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been helping children and their elders regain strength and vitality.

Children like S.S.S. It is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants, and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Get the larger size. It is more economical.

* The physical welfare of the child is being given more attention by school authorities. Failure to keep up with class work and absence from school is probably due to a nervousness and rundown condition that may be largely attributed to a deficiency in red blood cells.

APPEAL REJECTED
BY SUPREME COURT
TO SUPPORT ACTION

The Ohio Supreme Court Wednesday rejected the appeal of Ralph Jenks from the action of the Greene County Court of Appeals favoring Bertha Tate Hirsch in a case relating to a non-support charge.

Two suits were originally filed. Bertha Hirsch brought suit on a bond given by Jenks in Probate Court for the support of his child, Norman Jenks. It was charged by Jenks that the plaintiff agreed to accept $500 as full settlement of alimony and for the child's support.

Judgment was obtained in one case for $500 on a bond and for $150 in a second instance, the latter sum representing the amount due in back pay for the child's support.

The second case was a separate suit not on bond.

Judgment of the appellate court in the bond case was appealed to the supreme court while the second action was held in abeyance pending the higher court's decision in the first suit.

Attorneys Frank H. Dean and E. Dawson Smith represented Bertha Hirsch while Frank L. Johnson was counsel for Jenks.

Jim Reed of Missouri First to Challenge
Smith for Nomination

Yes, we have more candidates! Al Smith, Governor of New York (at left), finds his first challenge in Jim Reed, Senator from Missouri (right). Reed has started work for that Democratic nomination.

By FRED L. LINDELTON

(International Illustrated News Staff Correspondent)

REMEMBER 1924?

Sure you all do! Who could forget?

Hour after hour perspiring men tried to straighten out a hopeless tangle at the Democratic convention. Underwood, Ritchie, McAdoo and Smith, as well as others with small followings, threw all kinds of monkey wrenches into the works.

Well, Al Smith, New York's neat little vote-getter, didn't cop the 1924 nomination, but ever since then has been getting ready for the 1928 battle. He's been all alone in the field until recently, when Senator Jim Reed of Missouri chucked his hat into the ring.

Yes, sir! Along comes Jim Reed, out of the breezy west, to give battle to the "Sidewalks of New York" hero.

Reed is a man to be reckoned with. His is a personality which cannot be cast aside without due thought.

And, then, don't forget the drag he has with many good Democrats. No one can deny the fact that Reed has made an enviable name for himself in the councils of his party.

Now all radio "hounds" will probably have another chance to use up juice as they did in the 1924 days, when Alabama's votes for Underwood became a national by-word.

There's a big scramble on in the Democratic ranks, and possibly Jim Reed has shown the way.

Fearless Woman Carries on Work of Exploration

By ELMER CLARK

International Illustrated News Staff Correspondent

New York (I-I-N).—Decorated by the King of Belgium for her courageous work in penetrating African forests after the death of her husband in the midst of their trip, Mrs. Mary L. Jobe Akeley, widow of the famous explorer, Carl Akeley, is to be further honored.

She has been appointed by the trustees of the American Museum of Natural History to assist in the development of Mr. Akeley's plan for a great African Hall for that institution.

For seven and a half months of hunting and collecting in Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika, Mrs. Akeley was her husband's constant companion and confidante.

With Mr. Akeley's unexpected death, Kivu, the volcano region of the Belgian Congo, Mrs. Akeley suddenly found herself the head of the expedition.

Determined that her husband's work should not be left unfinished, she remained for seven weeks in her isolated camp, 800 miles by motor and 100 miles on foot from their base in Nairobi. In spite of intense cold, continuous rain, inadequate provisions, and the reluctance and insufficient numbers of her native porters, she managed to obtain the material for the gorilla group which Mr. Akeley desired for African Hall.

Finally, she transported her outfit to Lake Hannington in the Great Rift Valley, where the thermometer registered 115 degrees from eight in the morning until four in the afternoon, and there secured similar materials for a group of greater koodoo.

Her knowledge of her husband's aims and purposes and her experience in Africa make Mrs. Akeley's aid very important in the carrying out of Carl Akeley's plans for a museum exhibit which will record in permanent and artistic form the rapidly disappearing wild life of Africa.

In recognition of her heroic completion of the Congo expedition, Mrs. Akeley upon her return to Belgium last March was decorated by King Albert with the Cross of the Knight of the Order of the Crown.
